was one favoring a prohibitory chause in the constitution and another opposing it. The latter was adopted. A large number of members, however, expressed themselves in favor of the separate submission of the prohibition question to the people at the same time the constitution is submitted. After a long discussion the report of the committee on county, city and township organization was passed.

The sentiment in favor of wise laws to encourage capital to come into the state, is griding ground, and a miderity of the violent propositions against superprations will undoubtedly be allowed to sleep in the committees.
